At the start of WWII, Salvatore Todaro commands the Italian Royal Navy submarine Cappellini. One dark night in October 1940, while navigating in the Atlantic, he comes upon an armed merchant ship sailing without lights. He shoots at the ship and sinks it. The Commander then makes a decision that was destined to go down in history. He takes the 26 shipwrecked Belgians on board his already crowded submarine and aims for the nearest safe harbor, as prescribed by the law of the sea. To make room for them on board his submarine, he is forced to navigate on the surface of the water for three days, visible to the enemy forces and endangering his life and that of his men.

Lubo makes a humble living as a street performer when, in 1939, he is called to join the Swiss army to defend the border from a potential German invasion. Forced to abandon his family, he soon discovers that his wife tragically died while trying to stop the authorities from taking their three young children away. Targeted because they are Jenisch, a minority nomadic community, Lubo's family falls victim to a national campaign for the 're-education' of street children. But Lubo knows he will not find peace until he reunites with his children and gets justice for himself and his people - for which he is ready to go to extraordinary lengths. So begins a decades long journey for love and self-determination, an incredible adventure and an epic quest for freedom.

Turin, 1938. Young Ginia has just moved from the countryside and the future seems to offer her endless possibilities. But the war is casting its shadows over the present. Desperate for adventure, Ginia begins an electric affair with a painter she meets in the dazzling artists' world. The woman who leads her into the bohemian quarters is Amelia. Sensual and provocative, Amelia is not much older than Ginia, but different from anyone she has ever met and ready to shake her certainties. During her "beautiful summer", Ginia will surrender to her first great love. She will finally give in to her overwhelming feelings, celebrating the courage to be truly herself.

In Italy there is a law (unique in Europe) that forbids to a child unrecognized at birth, to know the history and name of his biological parents until he (or she) turns one hundred years old. Giovanni (30) is one of these kids and has been fighting all his life to change this absurd legislation. But to shake-up the public opinion, he needs a symbol, someone who can draw this battle against a law that affects more than 400,000 people. The only person who could apparently help his cause, seems to be Gustavo Diotallevi, the only 100 years old "name of father unknown" person currently alive. Their encounter will go beyond all expectations and will help both of them defeat their demons and help them to finally close the circle.

Elsa is seventeen, and has just begun to live her teenage years when she discovers that everything may already be over: she has leukemia, and she needs a bone marrow transplant immediately. The only compatible donor? Someone she's never met and whose name she doesn't even know: her father. But thanks to Edo, a boy her age she met in the hospital, outgoing and irreverent, she decides to go on and find that man. Apparently, Elsa and Edo have nothing in common except for the illness they both share, but the journey they embark on together, will change their lives forever.

Vito and Carla separated a long time ago. They have three children. They loved each other desperately before hate replaced love. Now Vito has a new life and Carla too has a partner. Everyone feels like a tragedy that was waiting to happen has been averted and destiny is on their side. At least until that day, that evening when Vito disappears. Since that day, no one has heard from him anymore. His disappearance sets in motion an investigation into the past of all the persons involved. But, in these cases, does a single, irrefutable truth really exist?

Maria is a girl from Nazareth, who has the same love for the stories in the Bible that Don Quixote has for adventure stories. As a female she is not allowed to do anything, not even learn to read and write. But in the synagogue she listens enthusiastically to the prophets, who demand explanations from God as equals. She dreams of freedom, knowledge, adventure, and escape. And she rebels against God's plan, all the way to the ultimate disobedience. Joseph is her teacher and accomplice, a charming and powerful man, very different from the hunched old fellow of the holy paintings.

Elena and Antonio discover that their parents have a very rare disease. Their only hope for survival is a stem cell donation that must occur in a very short time, and their children are the only suitable candidates for this particular procedure. Elena and Antonio prepare for the operation, but Antonio discovers that he's not a match for the donation, and Elena's stem cells are not enough for both of them: it's not possible to cure both parents. Whose survival will they choose? And who will they let die? A dramatic decision that will force brother and sister to come to terms with their entire past and bring to the surface their fiercest instincts.
